which they committee and which he thorized and sanctioned on and before last Election Day.

Every effort has been made by the counsel for the indicted men to have the trials adjourned, but Justice Bartlett finally put an end to those dilatory tactics by definitely setting down the trial of he cases for to-day.

At 10 o'clock this morning, when Justice Bartlett took his seat upon the bench, the court-room was literally packed from the rall in front of the Judge's desk to the corridors. Every inch of standing room had long been occupied, and there was no end of grumbling among those outside in the hall who had come too late to obtain admission.

occupied, and there was no end of grumbling among those outside in the hall who had come too late to obtain admission.

The overflow extended all the way down the long corridor to the stairways. The gallery in the back of the court-room was also crowded, and the open doorways were blocked with pressure of the throng from the hallway. It would have been a dinguilt matter to have squeezed another person into the room.

It was said that McKane and his other co-defendants were their in the court-room, but they were hidden from sight in the immense throng.

Lawyer Shepard and Gen. Tracy had come in just before the magistrate, and had taken up their positions near the railing ready to open the case as soon as the preliminary calling of the jurors' names by the clerk had been completed.

Ex-Judge Troy and Lawyer Roderick were right behind them. It took nearly twenty minutes to call the long list of jurors. Then it was announced that only legal excuses for release from duty would be received.

The Inspectors of Election, whose cases were set down to be first tried, together with Mcane, are John H. Brownhill, Norton Moris and Michael P. Murphy.

Mr. Zell was at the Club Thursday evening preparing for a dinner to be given Wednesday evening to some friends. In a drawer in the Club safe, to which he alone had a key, lay a certificate of deposit for $10,000 on the Liberty Bank in the same building where his private office was.

The club had been transferring part of its funds to another institution and no suspicion would have been aroused had he presented that certificate and drawn out the funds. The certificate was found in the drawer this morning.

"I cannot account for Mr. Zell's disappearance." said Mr. Weeks to-day. "except on the theory that he has been taken suddenly ill. His health had been taken suddenly ill. His health had been poor for some time. It must be that he is ill somewhere."
